Bailey Streetscene were approached by Willmott Dixon to assist with supply and implementation of a high quality court yard project for a residence apartment block located in the heart of Nottingham.

The client required bespoke concrete seating and planters as well timber seating to match the high spec of the courtyard, creating a relaxing outdoor environment for residents.

Bailey streetscene supplied our stylish timber Holgate benches alongside bespoke white concrete benches and planters which complemented the contemporary look of the rest of the development.

Working alongside the contractor and architects with reference to design budgets, we overcame the logistics of working within a live build environment and confined, restricted working area.

During the period of work Bailey Streetscene operated intensively with Willmott Dixon and the site staff, Bailey Streetscene provided the benches, seats and planters and installed the street furniture to the contractor's requirements. All installations were scheduled to meet tight time constraints and comply with site regulations.

The finished project now allows residents to relax in a modern, stylish outdoor communal area and the quality of Bailey streetscene's products massively contributes to this.
